Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

I HAVE this story confidentially from one of the men involved. An American concern which has large export sales was pressed for money several years ago, and borrowed $7,000 from a customer in Scotland. At that time the British pound sterling was at par, worth $4.87 in American currency.

Gurley Indicted With Wilson for 'Fixing' Prohi Case

District Attorney Ivie Denounces Procedure, Refusing to Sign

BRIBERY CHARGED

Federal Grand Jury Action Follows Trap With Marked Money

TEXARKANA — S. M. Gurley, former deputy prohibition administrator, and Owen R. Wilson, former prohibition agent, were indicted Monday by the Arkansas federal grand jury on charges of obstructing the due administration of justice by accepting money from liquor defendants with promises to obtain dismissals.

Gurley, named in two bills, must make bonds totalling $3750 by Tuesday noon. Wilson's bond was set at $3000. Wilson was one of Gurley's preliminary bondsmen.

Ivie Refuses to Sign
United States District Attorney W. N. Ivie refused to sign the indictments, declaring that on their face they were "stupid things he had never heard of." B. L. Thompson, foreman of the grand jury signed both bills.

Replying to a previous statement by Ivie criticizing his conduct in the affair as illegal, United States Marshal Cooper Hudspeth asserted Monday in response to a request for an interview that he considered the grand jury's action fully bore out the course he had pursued.

Gurley and Wilson were named in one bill as having accepted various sums from four men—Artie and John Clark of Nevada county, and W. E. Hawthorne and Leonard Patton of Lafayette county. The Clark brothers were alleged to have paid $20 and $5 respectively, and Hawthorne and Patton $10 each.

Accused of "Fixing"
The indictment, based on Section 241, Title 18, recited that the former officers obstructed and impeded justice by their acceptance of these sums and by agreeing that they would "see that the cases were dismissed" or "refund the money."

The second indictment against Gurley was based on the trap set for him with the aid of George Bassett, a bootlegger, who gave him $25 in marked bills provided by the United States marshal, in the federal building last Tuesday. This indictment simply charged that Gurley accepted the money and promised to "do the best he could for him."

An attempt to nolle prosequere Artie Clark case Wednesday by District Attorney Ivie was followed shortly afterward by Judge Hearstall Ragon's announcement that no actions of any kind would be taken in liquor cases until the May term.

Ivie had pointed out that the case had previously resulted in a mistrial, and had originated in 1930.

Wealthy Playboy Is Slain by Wife

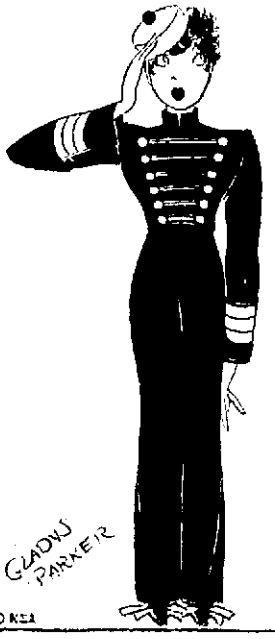

Sheldon Clark Hits Wife With Pool Cue—She Shoots Him

PAULSBORO, N. J. — Sheldon Clark, 3, grandson of former Congressman Henry Lauderbach and son of A. Sheldon Clark, Chicago sportsman and vice president of the Sinclair Refining Company, was shot to death here Monday in his palatial home by his wife, Audrey, 25, an actress, whom he married in 1925 after a romantic courtship.

Mrs. Clark, who was known on the stage as Audrey Smith, is a patient at Underwood hospital, Woodbury, with severe lacerations of the scalp sustained when, she says, her husband hit her with a pool cue. They have two children, Sheldon, six, and Harry, four.

Paulsboro police said that the quarrel was started when Mrs. Clark went to the rathskeller in the basement of the home, where Clark and a friend, held tonight as a witness, were drinking and playing billiards. Mrs. Clark told her husband that dinner was ready. When he replied that he was going out for dinner she urged him to remain at home. He became enraged, police said, chased her up the stairs and hit her on the head with a billiard cue. A revolver was on a radiator nearby. The wife took the gun, went down the steps to the rathskeller and shot her husband. The bullet went through the heart and he died instantly.

Mrs. Clark was rushed to the Underwood hospital where she was surrounded by the police by her lawyer.

Press Files Protest on Morgenthau's Order Prohibiting Interviews

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt has created an executive committee to supervise all government action affecting foreign trade.

This announcement came Tuesday from the Department of State. The new committee must be consulted by any department taking any step affecting imports and exports.

It was also indicated that the final say on the liquor import policy will rest with this committee.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — O. M. W. Sprague, resigned Tuesday as special advisor to the Treasury, asserting: "There is no defense from a drift into unreasoned inflation other than an aroused and organized public opinion."

Treasury Enforces Silence
WASHINGTON — (AP) — In addition to an order prohibiting Treasury officials from giving information to the press, Acting Secretary Morgenthau has instructed all officers or employees of the Treasury to submit all public addresses they may make to his assistant, Herbert E. Gaston, for approval in advance of delivery, it was learned Tuesday.

Newspaper correspondents who cover the Treasury telegraphed President Roosevelt at Warm Springs protesting against the restrictions imposed by Morgenthau, asserting in their opinion relations between the press and the Treasury had been "seriously impaired."

State Mayors Are Ordered to L. R.

They and County Judges Must Meet Dyess on C. W. A. Wednesday

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — A demand for county organizations to speed up the transfer of relief workers to the Civil Works Administration rolls, came Tuesday from W. R. Dyess, state director.

Dyess declared: "We are licked before we start if we are to expect this program to be carried out in the present manner."

He called upon the mayors of the state to meet with him at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, and the county judges at 11 o'clock.

He sent telegrams to all counties asking for the number of persons who have been put to work on the new C. W. A. projects launched this week.

He declared that county and city officials and civic organizations were obligated to aid in speeding up the program at once.

Candidate Would Abolish Congress

Caldwell Would Give Power to President and 48 Governments

BLITHEVILLE, Ark. — Announcing that the single plank in his platform is the abolition of Congress, Clinton L. Caldwell of Etowah Monday announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the First Arkansas District at the August 1934 primary.

His platform calls for transferring all of the powers of Congress to the president who would be subject to suspension by a vote of a majority of the 48 governors who, at the same time would call a special national election to elect his successor.

Mrs. Conner is charged with telephoning gangsters that Frank Nash was being taken back to prison, the rescue attempt resulting in the massacre.

British King Is Heckled by Labor

King George, However, Ignores Interruption in Parliament

LONDON, Eng. — (AP) — Parliament experienced a sensation Tuesday when Laborite J. McGovern cried out shrilly as King George ended his address opening the new session.

"What about the abolition of the means test and unemployment cuts?" the Laborite shouted.

He continued: "It's a shame, while people are starving."

The king, who pledged the government's efforts toward a solution of the disarmament problem, ignored the interruption and offered his arm to Queen Mary for the royal exit.

Horatio Team to Play Here Friday

Lions Have Won Seven Out of Their Eight Games

By RALPH KITE
HORATIO, Ark. — Having won seven of the eight games played this season, the Horatio high school Lions are working hard this week in preparation for their encounter with the Hope Bobcats at Hope Friday night.

The Lions have been victorious in their last three encounters with the Bobcats, but the game this week is looked upon as their toughest assignment of the season. The Hempstead county boys have made a good record against heavy opposition, and while Leslie Nations and Collins Perry of the local squad, are leaving nothing undone to have the team in shape for their best showing.

The Lions this season have one of the lightest squads in their history, and have been depending on speed and good blocking to pile up 120 points to their opponents' 49 for the season up to date. In the backfield, Matthews, Gibson, Dickinson and Crews each weigh less than 155 pounds, but are shifty and fast.

Blackie Brown, fullback, stands six feet two inches in height and weighs 170 pounds. He is a consistent ground gainer, and his punting has been sensational in the past three games. In the line, the bulwark of the defense is the playing Longacre and Captain Jones at the wing positions. Spears, guard, and Lazenby and Broadway at the tackles. Brazil, reserve tackle has also showed up well this season. A large delegation of fans are expected to accompany the team to Hope Friday.

Below is the team's record for the season:

Horatio 6, Antlers (Okla.) 0.
Horatio 6, Texarkana (Tex.) 31.
Horatio 6, Goodland Indians 0.
Horatio 26, Emory 12.

State May Repair Its Old Hospital, Accomodate 3,600

Conference Follows Refusal of Loan to Complete New One

$350,000 PROGRAM

Proposal Would Include Completion of First of New Units

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — A proposal to construct a dormitory and modernize the present buildings at the State Hospital here, as well as to complete the first unit of the new hospital at Benton, was favorably discussed at a joint meeting of the Board of Control with the state construction chairman, Judge Joseph M. Hill, here Tuesday.

Governor Futrell met the board and disclosed a plan which contemplates expenditure of $350,000.

The new dormitory would house attendants and nurses, and with completion of the first unit at Benton, 3,600 patients could be housed comfortably, it was said.

Protest Loan Refusal
LITTLE ROCK — Governor Futrell Monday wrote Col. H. M. Waite, executive administrator of the Public Works Administration at Washington, protesting the tentative refusal of the Public Works Administration to approve a loan to complete the new state hospital at Benton on the ground that Arkansas has not met its bonded debt.

The governor did not make public the text of the letter, but said he sent a copy to President Roosevelt because he thought the president should know that an important employment project was being held up on such a pretext.

"My understanding was that the Public Works Administration was created by the president to relieve unemployment and not to act as collector for bondholders," the governor said in a statement.

"It has been intimated to me in reference to some requests for approval of state projects that Arkansas could levy an additional tax to pay her highway bondholders."

"The state hospital project has no relation to the highway debt. The state levied an income tax to retire bonds issued to construct the hospital, and there never has been a default in these obligations. The income tax is sufficient to meet the interest and principal maturities on all bonds authorized for the state hospital."

Bank Deposits Up Paralysis Victim

$150,000 in Hope Can Walk Again

Combined Local Deposits Reach Highest Figure in Several Years

Bank deposits in Hope have increased almost $150,000 since the last bank call four weeks ago, a survey disclosed Tuesday. Local bankers say this is a reflection of government loans of 10 cents a pound to growers.

On October 25, the date of the last bank call the two local banks had combined deposits of $1,757,702.

At the close of business Monday total deposits of both banks were over $1,905,000, an increase of nearly $150,000 in the last three weeks, and a close approach to the 2-million dollar mark for the first time in several years.

Local bankers expect considerable retail trade to come from the Civil Works program, which will employ 771 men in Hempstead county for three months at $12 each per week. This may bring another increase in deposits.

Four - year - old Gracie Thornton, of Ozan, can walk.

Stricken with infantile paralysis at the age of one, the little girl had been helpless—until a pair of steel braces arrived here for her.

She took her first steps in the office of Dr. Jim Martindale after he had placed her feet and legs in the steel braces, which were made possible through funds raised by the local American Legion Auxiliary.

Gracie will have to wear the braces for the next five or six years. By that time her feet and limbs are expected to be straight and strong.

Gracie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Thornton of Ozan.

Chicago Man Who Got His Start Here, Back on Inspection Trip

T. B. Freeman, former Hope merchant, now vice-president of Butler Bros., inspected the L. C. Burr & Co. store and the Scott store here Monday. Mr. Freeman is general superintendent of the two strings of retail stores. His home is in Chicago.

It will be recalled that he founded the Freeman store here about ten years ago, which became No. 2 of the Scott Stores string. There are now more than 100 Scott stores, and a large number of L. C. Burr stores.

The Take-off Monday

Straining at mooring lines held by her ground crew, the big gas bag which carried Lieut. Com. T. G. W. Settle and his aide, Major Chester H. Fordney, on their stratosphere flight is shown outside the yawning doors of the Goodyear-Zeppelin airlock at Akron, Ohio, in the photo taken just before the start of the flight Monday morning. Attendees are seen steadying the globular gondola in which Settle and Fordney were to seal themselves when they invaded rarified atmosphere, miles above the earth.

BRIDGETON, N. J. — (AP) — The stratosphere balloon of Lieutenant Commander T. G. Settle and Major Chester L. Fordney landed on the farm of S. N. Johnson, southwest of here, early Tuesday morning.

The men are safe. The balloon, settled to earth at the confluence of the Delaware and Cohansey rivers.

The balloon jolted to a rest in the marsh land southwest of here at 5:30 Monday afternoon.

The balloonists slept through the night wrapped in the deflated fabric of the big balloon, awaiting daybreak, when Major Chester Fordney set out for civilization, reaching a farm house about 9:30 Tuesday morning.

Major Fordney said the highest altitude reached during the flight was 59,000 feet.

Navy airmen at Washington, at first ordered to search the Atlantic coast for the balloon, received fresh orders to proceed here and assist the balloonists.

Reach 59,000 Feet

SALEM, N. J. — (AP) — An intense search that extended over southwestern Delaware was on early Tuesday for Lieut. Com. T. G. W. Settle's stratosphere balloon, which was last reported drifting over South Jersey after its 59,000-foot ascent Monday.

The search was concentrated on the four-mile strip of Alloway woods, 10 miles east of Salem, following one unconfirmed report that the big bag had dropped to earth there after its take-off from Akron, O.

Other reports said the balloon had been sighted over various South Jersey municipalities.

The Weather Bureau at Camden Central airport reported that a five-mile-an-hour wind was blowing out of the northwest, and if the balloon had been carried along southeastward at that rate since last sighted, she would have reached Delaware bay or northern Delaware.

The balloon was seen later, over Daretown, 15 miles east of Salem, at 3:45 p. m. After that vague report that she had been seen over Vineland, to the southeast, and over points south of Daretown were not confirmed.

State troopers from virtually every backroads in South Jersey were out on the search, and hundreds of automobiles scoured the countryside.

Some observers believed Commander Settle and his companion, Maj. Chester L. Fordney, were remaining aloft until they could sight a suitable landing place, because of the instruments they had, and others deemed the balloonists would not come down until daylight, when a landing would be much easier.

No apprehension was felt for the safety of the balloon or its occupants.

Discards Radio Set

At Akron, Lieut. Sam Townsend of the naval radio station said that Settle might have been heading for the naval air base at Lakehurst. He had had no communication with the balloon for several hours as Settle had dumped his battery and other wireless sending paraphernalia overboard. He still had a receiving set and could take reports and check his position.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Stalling Battle Rages Over Who Gets Profits on Food... Manufacturers Stage Fight on Second-Hand Bedding... Not a Leak From Litvinoff Parley.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER.

NEA Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON—Farm holiday hell-raising as Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace calls it, has varied in intensity with the weather.

Hell-raising in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration here goes merrily on.

Nowhere in government ranks is there more persistent, bitter warfare. The battle is between the liberals, who demand best possible prices for farmers plus full protection for consumers, and the friends of the "middle-man," primarily interested in guarantee of profits.

The clash comes over marketing agreements and codes submitted by the industries. Sugar, milk, tobacco, the meat packing industry, and others already have provided battlegrounds.

James F. Dole, the Hawaiian pineapple magnate, who became chief of the AAA food products section, is expected to resign if the consumers' counsel's office wins its fight for provision for consumer grades and standards in every one of the $9,000,000,000 food industry's codes.

Definite food standards would be set up, with compulsory labeling on all cans and packages.

Dole is one of numerous business men who are administrative assistants and section chiefs under Administrator George N. Peek. The liberal group includes Assistant Secretary Rex Tugwell, Economic Adviser Morris E. Eichel, Chief Counsel Jerome Frank, Consumers' Counsel Fred Howes, and Economist Gardiner Means—men with honest, experimental minds, but no profit incentive.

In general, they look to Wallace for support. They complain, in effect, that processors and distributors seek undue profits at farmer and consumer expense.

Resignation of the AAA Food Advisory Board, representing the industries, was one result of the struggle. So was that of Charles J. Brand, who wanted to be AAA co-administrator and active head of the fertilizer trade association at the same time.

Gen. W. I. Westervelt, head of the important processing and marketing division, privately has suggested a compromise to Tugwell. Tugwell is receptive, but you can look for hot fights over the packers' agreement and the food standards issue just the same.

Mum on Cost

Second-hand materials in upholstered bedding would be prohibited under the bedding manufacturers' proposed NRA code. The manufacturers stress health arguments and promise of increased use of agricultural products, but not the cost factor.

Not a Leak Here

The Litvinoff conferences were the most secret sessions any Washington correspondent remembered. None of the conferees was talking, either "off the record" or "for background," and there wasn't a leak. Usually some correspondents can get inside tips from an amiable official or another.

Roosevelt, realizing continued existence of anti-recognition sentiment and the certainty of future political backfire, didn't want the sharpshooters to begin until negotiations were over.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

When making out your winter beauty budget, don't confuse drugs with cosmetics!

You should have a separate budget for each of these two headlines. Mixing them may prove confusing and you'll be apt to decide that you're spending too much in the name of beauty when you really aren't at all.

For instance, tooth paste, tooth brushes, aspirin tablets, soap, comb, hair brushes and the like are not to go on the list of necessary cosmetics. They are associated with health habits and therefore should be placed on the drug list.

Giving yourself home manicures is an economy step. And something you'll enjoy doing once you get into the habit. Besides, nails look prettier when they are given a little bit of daily attention instead of only a weekly treatment.

You'll need a good file, some emery boards, orange sticks, cotton, cuticle

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

©1933 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

It doesn't do one bit of good to tell a child to stand up straight. He will do it for a minute or so perhaps, but the instant his mind is on something else, down he slumps again.

He will only hold his chin up and his shoulders back as long as he remembers. True, if he can be made conscious of them altogether without letting anything else interfere, the miraculous might happen. Habit is made up of over-repeated actions.

But I have never known a child who grew straight merely because he was talked into it. Children, fortunately, often do adopt better postures as they grow older, but other things are to be thanked for the change usually.

Mal-nourished Amid Plenty

A mal-nourished child is usually round shouldered, dull-eyed, and anything but soldier-like in his bearing. Such children are not invariably poor. The mal-nourished child can be found anywhere, at the well covered tables of the rich as well as in the unemployed home. A child on three non-plantful meals a day may be getting all the proteins, starches, sugars, fats and vitamins he needs because the food is simple, well-assorted; and what is better still, he may have a good digestive tract that makes the most of it.

The child who has had his digestive organs weakened through past illness, or had a poor beginning when a baby may not be absorbing all the "good" of what he eats. Such a child may have well-to-do parents. Rich and poor alike may suffer.

The causes of inability to take proper care of food are not always easy to identify. I lay most humped-up shoulders, and sagging heads, however, to some weakness in the child, not merely careless habit. The one who has grown well from birth, who has had a correct diet from babyhood, including cod liver oil and calcium-containing foods, and who has never had an undermining sickness is usually straight. His head is set well on his shoulders, his hips are flat and held in, his stomach flat, too—not protruding. No sign of rickets. No sign of undue weariness or dullness or slumping.

Over Study Causes "Hunch"

Of course children may get the "student hunch" from studying too long without compensating exercise. And adolescents may be compelled to crouch a bit because bones grow long and the muscles cannot keep up with them. Muscles may pull shoulders over until they, too, have done their growing to match the bones.

But little children should be straight. Long hours of sleep on a comfortable bed, plenty of exercise and proper food should make a soldier of a child. If there is something keeping his chin up his chest the doctor should be consulted. Gym work may help, too. At any rate, mere words are not the answer, or half of it.

remover, cuticle oil, polish and a polish remover. Good emery boards last a long time and a good file will last practically a lifetime. So it's economical to get a good one instead of having to buy a cheap one every few months.

Shape your nails every day with an emery board. Then, once a week, file them until they are the right length. Nail make-up isn't very expensive and one bottle of it should last nearly all winter.

A pound roll of cotton with which to apply lotions to your face is less expensive than several small containers of it.

NEXT: More economy measures.

The UNKNOWN BLOND

By Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

On a stormy November evening DAVID BANISTER was sitting in a taxi cab in New York City. He was looking out the window at the city lights and thinking of the girl who had just left him.

Next morning Banister reads that TRACY KING, orchestra leader, has been found dead in his apartment. Police are searching for a "dark-skinned blond" who visited King the night before.

Banister goes to see the room in which King died, and finds an object which he puts in his pocket. KING, HE REMEMBERED, who lives in the hotel, tells Banister about the violent quarrel King had with a girl named MELVINE HOLISTER, spinster, who lives in the apartment below King's.

Banister takes a car drive to the room in which King died, and finds the object in King's room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XI

ONE side of the cardboard was gray and discolored. Banister turned it over and studied the photograph on the other side. It was a photograph of a man and a woman—the man sitting down, the woman standing, with one hand resting on his shoulder.

It must have been taken 25 or 30 years before. The woman's dress was white, a rather elaborate dress with ruffled skirt reaching to the floor and lace about the modestly cut neck. A style of dress worn, Banister thought, in the early 1900's. In her arm she held a bouquet of roses. She was a pretty woman, young looking.

The man beside her was older. He appeared rather formidable in his black suit which must have been the utmost in elegance for its day. His dark hair, in Banister's judgment, was badly in need of trimming. Banister would have dispensed with the heavy mustache, too.

It was, beyond all doubt, a wedding picture. No need to take in such details as the bridal bouquet or the sprig of orange blossoms pinned in the young woman's coiffure.

Yes, an old-fashioned wedding picture. A curious thing to find with the golf clubs and cocktail shaker and stack of "blues" songs in the bedroom of the dead orchestra leader. Banister studied the faces in the photograph. Neither, so far as he could see, resembled Tracy King.

He did not know why he had put the photograph in his pocket except that he wanted to study it further and Link's coming had prevented that. He looked at the bottom of the card and read, "Swann Studio," in flowing gilt script. Below in smaller letters was the name of a town he had never heard of, located in another state.

For several moments Banister looked at the two faces. Then he gave it up. There was certainly nothing in that old photograph to give him any information about Tracy King's murder. Nothing whatever. He slipped the picture back into his pocket and thought that, as an amateur detective, he was probably the world's worst.

STILL he had the story of Melvina Holister's quarrel with

I know not what tomorrow holds
In secret store for me;
If she shall show a shining face
Of sympathy and kindly grace,
Or dole and misery.

Today I boast is mine to live,
And live today I must;
To squander waste, as it may be;
And yet, I hear a still voice's plea,
Today is yours to trust.

A loan from Life, each little hour
Which giant deeds can sway.
For good or evil, in their flow,
For proud accomplishment or woe,
The lost, or Perfect Day.

SETTLE, FORNEY

not worried about the crew's safety and that if worse came to worse, they could pull the balloon's rip cord and descend quickly.

Settle and his aide, Maj. Chester L.
Fordney, took the colors of their military departments almost 11 miles into the sky. Settle is attached to the navy. Fordney to the marines.

The United States Coast Guard spid a plane at Cape May, N. J., had been ordered to stand by and prepare to aid cutters if the balloon should be blown to sea.

The chances of drifting over the sea appeared remote, however, unless Settle lost his bearings.

Russians Hold Record

The 58,000-foot ascent however is less than the almost 12 miles which three Russian balloonists claimed to have attained last September 30.

Monday's foray into one of the last unknown frontiers within man's current reach, in one respect partook of the remarkable on a scale never before attempted. Settle and Fordney cruised beneath a sky described as a "beautiful blue," hanging suspended 58,000 feet above sea level, they talked with those on the earth below them, casually and calmly.

Methodical and unharried, they replied to questions asked on a short wave voice wireless set to inform their listeners that they were comfortable, had drunk a cup of coffee apiece and according to schedule.

The adventurers had the mission of studying the nature of the cosmic ray, that elusive beam bombarding the earth, which has claimed the undivided attention of some of the most famous scientists for years. The rays, 100 times as powerful in the stratosphere as at sea level were to be recorded on delicate instruments carried by the aeronauts.

May Decide Scientific Conflict

If, in summing up the results of Monday's experiment, it is found that Dr. Arthur H. Compton, of the University of Chicago, is correct in contending the rays are electrons, scientists possibly would see support for the theory that the universe originated in an explosion thousands of millions of years ago.

It is found that the rays are pho-tons, or bullets of light, as Dr. Robert A. Millikan of California Institute of Technology contends, those same scientists may conclude that the universe is "immortal" and self-renewing.
The photons, according to the Millikan theory, represent left-over energy released in space in the process of forming new atoms of matter to replenish dying stars.

Whatever they found concerning the cosmic ray will not be known until a study of the recordings of their instruments is completed.

In perfect weather, the two aéro-nauts sailed away from the field after a wait to permit the sun to expand the 125,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas within the 600,000 cubic foot bag and thus increase its lifting capacity. Six hours and 23 minutes later Settle told Admiral King of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics: "We're at the peak now, and I think we'll start down."

The old files showed that Hope went through a successful season, winning most of games. The last battle of the season was with Prescott. The team then was known as the Prescott Tigers.

The two teams believed to be about evenly matched that year, but Prescott turned the affair into a rout when Graham, Prescott's halfback, rambled for four touchdowns, beat-

Stewart to Run for Prosecutor

Retiring State Senator Announces Candidacy for Attorneyship

TEXARKANA.—State Senator Ned Stewart of Lewisville Monday announced his candidacy for prosecuting attorney for the district comprising Miller, Lafayette, Hempstead, Nevada and Clark counties.

His entry in the race brought about a sort of "swap" of candidates, since Prosecuting Attorney Millard Alford has already announced he would seek the state senatorship.

Stewart was born October 20, 1903, at Clarksville, Texas. He has lived at Lewisville the past 25 years. He graduated from Lewisville high school in 1920, attended the University of Arkansas and Vanderbilt University Law School, and received his law degree from Vanderbilt in 1927.

He was admitted to the bar July 12, 1928, and to practice in the United States Supreme court December 2, 1930.

He was formerly a law partner of Circuit Judge Dexter Bush, the firm dissolving when the latter was appointed circuit judge. He is now of the firm of Atkins and Stewart, with offices at Hope, and Lewisville.

Stewart's political career includes holding of the following offices:
Secretary board of election commissioners of Lafayette county, 1927-28.
City attorney, Lewisville, 1929-30.
State senator of the Twenty-first district, composed of Miller, Lafayette and Columbia counties, 1931-33.
President pro tem of the Arkansas state senate, 1931-33.

Acting governor of Arkansas August 21-23, 1931.

Stewart was the youngest member of the Arkansas senate, and the youngest man ever to act as governor of any state. He was only 27 years old at the time.

Long Gives Letter to Explain Loan

$22,500 Note at Bank
Brought Into Election
Probe

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—After a week's absence, Senator Huey P. Long, visited the senate committee investigation of his colleagues, Senator John H. Overton, late Monday and brought a letter intended to show that an item of $22,500 mentioned by bankers earlier in the day had nothing to do with the campaign.

As he walked down the aisle, the spectators cheered and booed, and Senator Long smiled on all sides. He gave the letter to Senator Overton but after a few minutes walked out when Chairman Connally (D., Texas) raised objection to insertion of the letter into the record until the signature and date had been confirmed.

When Senator Thomas (D., Ill.) who was presiding, with Chairman Connally seated at the counsel table agreed to enter the letter into the record, Senator Long stopped at the door and listened to its reading and then disappeared. The committee held they would insert the letter in the record with the privilege of later striking it out.

The letter was signed by Irving Moss, insurance executive, and addressed to Seymour Weiss, treasurer of Long's political organization that supported Overton's candidacy. It dealt with the transfer of a note for $22,500 at the American Bank & Trust Co. from Weiss to Moss and a bank casher testified that the note was paid by Moss.

At the opening of Monday's hearing, bankers testified that drafts of approximately $9000 drawn against Weiss had passed through their banks during the Overton campaign. The drafts, they said, were drawn from various sections of the state.

John F. Fink, liquidator of the Canal Bank & Trust Co., testified that two loans were made to Weiss, one for $500 and another for $2500, on September 9, three days before the primary election and they were paid in cash on October 5.

DINNY MUST HAVE CROSSED TH' RIVER! NOW HOW ARE WE GONNA FOLLOW HIM?

I CAN ANSWER THAT WITH THE GREATEST OF EASE—WE'LL FLOAT ACROSS ON A COUPLE OF TREES!

ONE TREE ALONE IS TOO SMALL TO RIDE—SO TIE 'EM TOGETHER, SIDE BY SIDE!

OKAY! THAT'S A SWEET IDEA!

WASH TUBBS

RUNNY, SOME STRANGER CALLED. SAID THE ENGINEER WHO BOUGHT OUR CLAIM WANTS US TO COME OVER AT ONCE.

WHAT IS IT? A PARTY OR BUSINESS?

OH, IT ISN'T A PARTY, HE SAID IT WAS URGENT, THAT SOMETHINGS HAPPENED.

RATS! IF IT'S SO ALL-IMPORTANT, LET HIM COME OVER HERE.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

BOY! YOU SURE BLEW UP FRECKLES! I BETCHA CRASH WAS IN THERE, RIBBIN' YOU! HUH? FESS UP, NOW!!

YEAH...NO! NO! CRASH DIDN'T SAY ANYTHING! I JUST WENT TO PIECES, IS ALL!!

AW! DON'T KID US, FRECK!
